

Tomica Lindsey

In 2008, Tomica Lindsey began her career with Wachovia, now Wells Fargo, and is currently a Business Support Consultant in the Wholesale Bank. Tomica's primary responsibilities include leadership roles in the Business Process Risk Management and Fraud Risk programs representing the International Business Solutions and Controls team.

Prior to joining Wells Fargo, Tomica spent a number of years with Bank of America, serving in various leadership capacities in Operations, Retail and Business Banking.

Tomica's educational experience includes a Bachelor of Arts degree in Political Science from the University of North Florida, and an MBA in Global Management from the University of Phoenix. She holds certifications in Project Management Professional (PMP), Certified Fraud Examiner (CFE) and is actively pursuing the Certified Regulatory Compliance Manager (CRCM) certification.

Tomica is passionate about creating an environment where continuous learning is fostered and she knows the challenges of finding ways to ensure that those in need of help, receive it. Through encouragement, and accountability, she strives to develop and maintain the necessary community connections through volunteer efforts today, that will have lasting positive effects for years to come.

For this reason, and a myriad of others, Tomica is excited and thankful for the opportunity to further encourage and assist igniting the vision of women who are making the transition from homelessness to hope in a brighter more stable tomorrow!
